- (5) Before releasing a record classified private, confidential, or protected, the governmental entity shall obtain evidence of the requester's identity.
- (6) Nothing in this section prohibits a governmental entity from disclosing a record to persons other than those listed in Subsections (1), (2), and (3) if the governmental entity determines that disclosure is in the public interest.

(1) A governmental entity may charge a reasonable fee to cover the governmental entity's actual cost of duplicating a record or compiling a record in a form other than that maintained by the governmental entity as follows:

(b) Political subdivisions shall establish fees by ordinance.

(c) The judiciary shall establish fees by rules of the judicial council.

(2) A governmental entity may fulfill a request without charge when it determines that:

(b) the individual requesting the record is the subject of the record.

(3) A governmental entity may not charge a fee for:

(a) reviewing a record to determine whether it is subject to disclosure;

or

(b) inspecting a record.

(4) All money received by a state agency to cover the actual cost of duplicating a record or compiling a record in a form other than that maintained by the state agency shall be retained by the state agency as a dedicated credit. Those funds shall be used to recover the actual cost and expenses incurred by the state agency in providing the requested record or record series.

(5) This section does not apply to fees established by other statutes.

63-2-204. Requests — Time limit for response and extraordinary circumstances [Effective April 1, 1992].

(1) A person making a request for a record shall furnish the governmental entity with a written request containing his name, mailing address, daytime telephone number, and a description of the records requested that identifies the record with reasonable specificity.

(2) A governmental entity may make rules in accordance with Chapter 46a, Title 63, Utah Administrative Rulemaking Act, specifying where and to whom requests for access shall be directed.

(3) Except as provided in Subsection (4), a governmental entity shall respond to a records request no later than ten business days after receiving the request by:

(a) approving the request and providing the record;

(b) denying the request;

(c) notifying the requester that it does not maintain the record and providing, if known, the name and address of the governmental entity that does maintain the record; or

(d) notifying the requester that because of the extraordinary circumstances listed in Subsection (5), it cannot immediately approve or deny the request, and specifying the earliest time and date when the records will be available.

(4) If a requester demonstrates that he is a member of the news media or that expedited release of the record benefits the public rather than an individual, the governmental entity shall respond to a records request no later than five business days after receiving the request.

(5) The following circumstances constitute "extraordinary circumstances" that allow a governmental entity to delay approval or denial by an additional number of days as specified in Subsection 63-2-204 (6) if the governmental entity determines that due to the extraordinary circumstances it cannot respond within the time limits provided in Subsection (3) or (4):

(a) another governmental entity is using the record, in which case the originating governmental entity shall immediately request that the governmental entity currently in possession return the record;

(b) another governmental entity is using the record as part of an audit and returning the record before the completion of the audit would impair the conduct of the audit;

(c) the request is for a voluminous quantity of records;

(d) the governmental entity is currently processing a large number of records requests;

(e) the request requires the governmental entity to review a large number of records to locate the records requested;

(f) the decision to release a record involves legal issues requiring analysis of statutes, rules, ordinances, regulations, or case law;

(g) separating public information from private, confidential, or protected information requires extensive editing; or

(h) separating public information from private, confidential, or protected information requires computer programming.

(6) If a governmental entity claims that one of the extraordinary circumstances listed in Subsection (5) precludes approval or denial within the time specified in Subsection (3) or (4), the following time limits apply to the extraordinary circumstances:

(a) for claims under Subsection (5)(a), the governmental entity currently in possession of the record shall return the record to the originating entity within five business days of the request for the return unless returning the record would impair the holder's work;

(b) for claims under Subsection (5)(b), the originating governmental entity shall notify the requester when the record is available for inspection and copying;

(c) for claims under Subsections (5)(c), (d), and (e), the governmental entity shall:

(i) disclose the public records that it has located;

(ii) provide the requester with an estimate of the amount of time it will take to finish the search; and

(iii) complete the search and disclose the requested records as soon as reasonably possible;

(d) for claims under Subsection (5)(f), the governmental entity shall either approve or deny the request within five days after the response time designated for the original request has expired;

(e) for claims under Subsection (5)(g), the governmental entity shall fulfill the request within 15 business days from the date of the original request; or

- (f) for claims under Subsection (5)(h), the governmental entity shall complete its programming and disclose the requested records as soon as reasonably possible.
- (7) If a request for access is submitted to an office of a governmental entity other than that specified by rule in accordance with Subsection (2), the office shall immediately forward the request to the appropriate office. If the request is forwarded immediately, the time limit for response begins when the record is received by the office designated by rule.
- (8) If the governmental entity fails to provide the requested records or issue a denial within the specified time period, that failure is considered the equivalent of a determination denying access to the records.

63-2-205. Denials [Effective April 1, 1992].

- (1) If the governmental entity denies the request in whole or part, it shall send a notice of denial to the requester's address.

  - (b) citations to the provisions of this chapter, another state statute, federal statute, or federal regulation that exempt the record or portions of the record from disclosure, provided that the citations do not disclose private, confidential, or protected information;
  - (c) a statement that the requester has the right to appeal the denial to the chief administrative officer of the governmental entity and then to either the records committee or district court; and
  - (d) a brief summary of the appeals process, the time limits for filing an appeal, and the name and business address of the chief administrative officer of the governmental entity.
- (3) Unless otherwise required by a court or agency of competent jurisdiction, a governmental entity may not destroy or give up custody of any record to which access was denied until the period in which to bring an appeal has expired or the end of the appeals process, including judicial appeal.

63-2-206. Sharing records [Effective April 1, 1992].

- (1) A governmental entity may provide a record series classified private under Section 63-2-302, confidential under Section 63-2-303, or protected under Subsection 63-2-304 (1) or (2) to another governmental entity or government-managed corporation if the requesting governmental entity or government-managed corporation:

  - (b) certifies that the record or record series will be used for a purpose similar to the purpose for which the information in the record or record series was collected or obtained; and
  - (c) certifies that the use of the record or record series produces a public benefit that outweighs the individual privacy right that protects the record or record series.
- (3) A governmental entity may provide a record or record series classified protected under Subsection 63-2-304 (1) or (2) to another governmental entity if:
- (a) the record is necessary to the performance of the governmental entity's duties and functions; or
  - (b) the record will be used for a purpose similar to the purpose for which the information in the record or record series was collected or obtained.
- (4) Notwithstanding Subsection (2), a governmental entity may disclose a record to another state, the United States, or a foreign government for the reasons listed in Subsections (1), (2), and (3) if disclosure is authorized by executive agreement, treaty, federal statute, compact, federal regulation, or state statute.
- (5) Before disclosing a record or record series under this section to another governmental entity, another state, the United States, or a foreign government, the originating governmental entity shall:
- (a) inform the recipient of the record's classification and the accompanying restrictions on access; and
  - (b) obtain the recipient's written agreement that it will abide by those restrictions on access unless a statute, federal regulation, or interstate agreement otherwise governs the sharing of the record or record series.
- (6) A governmental entity shall provide a private, confidential, or protected record to another governmental entity if the requesting entity:
- (a) is entitled by law to inspect the record; or
  - (b) is required to inspect the record as a condition of participating in a state or federal program or for receiving state or federal funds.
- (7) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, if a more specific state statute, federal statute, or federal regulation prohibits or requires sharing information, that statute or federal regulation controls.
