Acknowledgments

Darrell K. Gilliard, statistician, wrote this report under the supervision of Allen J. Beck. Craig Perkins provided technical assistance. Danielle Morton, Dorothea Proctor, and Peter M. Brien provided statistical assistance. Rhonda Keith provided graphical assistance. Thomas Hester edited the report. Marilyn Marbrook, Yvonne Boston, and Jayne Pugh produced the publication.

Stephanie Brown of the Governments Division of the Bureau of the Census collected the data under the supervision of Betty Ford and Diana Cull.

Shirley Tuck of the Demographic Surveys Division of the Bureau of the Census processed the data under the supervision of Gertrude Odom and Larry McGinn.

The Assistant Attorney General is responsible for matters of administration and management with respect to the Office of Justice Program agencies: Bureau of Justice Assistance, Bureau of Justice Statistics, National Institute of Justice, Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, and Office for Victims of Crime. The Assistant Attorney General establishes policies and priorities consistent with the statutory purposes of the OJP agencies and the priorities of the Department of Justice.

This is the third volume in an annual series describing in detail the characteristics of persons admitted to and released from the prison and parole systems in the United States. The report presents data gathered from the 1987 National Corrections Reporting Program (NCRP). The NCRP, begun in 1983, evolved from the need to improve and consolidate corrections reporting at the national level as well as to reduce the States' reporting burden. Before the NCRP, the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) sponsored the National Prisoner Statistics Admissions and Releases Program and the Uniform Parole Reports to collect data.

Thirty-five States, the District of Columbia, and the Federal Bureau of Prisons contributed the offender-specific data that made this report possible. As we look forward to the inclusion of all States in this national series, we at BJS gratefully acknowledge the generous contribution of the State and Federal respondents who have enabled us to produce this volume.

Reporting criteria

The NCRP collects data on all prison admissions and releases and on all parole entries and discharges for calendar year 1987 in participating jurisdictions. Multiple admissions or releases per person during the year are recorded as separate events. The NCRP data cover prisoners admitted to or released from custody regardless of the jurisdiction where the prisoner was sentenced. Persons sentenced to a State prison but admitted to or released from the custody of a local jail are included in the NCRP.

Beginning in 1983 all sentenced inmates, including those with a total sentence of a year or less, were counted. To assure greater comparability across jurisdictions, the 1987 report includes only inmates with a sentence of more than a year except where noted. Information on all inmates, including those with a sentence of a year or less, is contained in the public-use data tape that may be obtained from the National Archive of Criminal Justice Data at the University of Michigan.

Offenses

Each State's offenses are recoded to a common set of offense codes. In this report, attempts and conspiracies are included with completed offenses, except for attempted murders and conspiracies to commit murder, which are classified as assaults.

Offense types appearing in this report include the following offenses:

Homicide—murder, felony murder, non-negligent manslaughter, voluntary manslaughter, negligent manslaughter, involuntary manslaughter, and unspecified homicide.

Murder/nonnegligent manslaughter—murder, felony murder, nonnegligent manslaughter, and voluntary manslaughter.

Murder—murder and felony murder.

Nonnegligent manslaughter—voluntary manslaughter, nonnegligent manslaughter, and aggravated manslaughter.

Manslaughter—negligent manslaughter, vehicular manslaughter, involuntary manslaughter, and negligent homicide.

Unspecified homicide—homicide and homicide type not specified.

Kidnaping—abduction, kidnaping, and felonious restraint.

Rape—forcible rape, aggravated rape, and sexual intercourse without consent.

Other sexual assault—statutory rape, carnal abuse, gross sexual imposition by force, fondling, child molestation, and lewd acts with children.

Robbery—unarmed robbery, armed robbery, aggravated robbery, and forcible purse snatching.

Assault—attempted murder, simple assault, aggravated assault, aggravated battery, vehicular assault, and criminal injury to persons.

Other violent—extortion, intimidation, hit-and-run driving with bodily injury, child abuse, and criminal endangerment against a person.

Burglary—breaking and entering, burglary, and safecracking.

Larceny—theft, petty larceny, and grand larceny.

Motor vehicle theft—auto theft, conversion of an automobile, receiving and transferring a stolen vehicle, and unauthorized use of a vehicle.

Arson—arson and burning a thing of value.

Fraud—worthless checks, uttering, obtaining money by false pretenses, credit card fraud, fraud, forgery, counterfeiting, and embezzlement.

Stolen property—possession, transportation, receiving, or selling of stolen property.

Other property—destruction of property, vandalism, criminal tampering, trespassing, entering without breaking, and possession of burglary tools.

Drug possession—possession or use of controlled substances.

Drug trafficking—importation, manufacture, sale, or delivery of controlled substances; possession with intent to deliver.

Other drug—forging or uttering a false prescription for a controlled substance; possession of drug paraphernalia, unknown drug offenses, and violations of controlled substance acts where the type of violation was unspecified.

Weapons—unlawful sale, distribution, manufacture, transportation, or possession of a deadly or dangerous weapon.

Other public-order—escape from custody, court offenses, obstruction, driving while intoxicated, other traffic offenses, drunkenness, disorderly conduct, morals and decency violations, commercialized vice, and liquor law violations.

Other offenses—juvenile offenses and unspecified felonies.

Federal offenses were recoded to many of the same categories defined above. Specific Federal categories include the following:

Embezzlement—postal, bank, and benefit plans.

Methodology

Fraud—postal, passport, Veterans' and other benefits, government employment, banks, computer, and impersonation.

Counterfeiting—postal, money orders, securities, altering or forging currency.

Regulatory—violation of banking and insurance laws, smuggling, violation of customs, election laws, food and drug laws, maritime and railroad laws, retirement act and unemployment insurance, communication law and other regulatory provisions.

Immigration—illegal entry, harboring or smuggling illegal aliens, and other immigration violations.

Tax law—internal revenue violations, including tax fraud, tax evasion, and failure to pay excise, alcohol, inheritance withholding, Social Security, or other taxes.

Racketeering and extortion—threats through the mail, over the phone, or in interstate commerce, labor racketeering, RICO, money laundering, and interference with commerce by threat or violence.

Sentences

Data on sentence length refer to the offense with the longest sentence. Whenever a sentence had both a minimum and a maximum term, the maximum was used to define the sentence length. A life sentence was defined as any prison sentence with a fixed or maximum term of life in prison, regardless of the possibility of parole.

Time served

Time served refers to the amount of time spent in prison between the date of admission and the date of release or to the amount of time spent on parole between the date of prison release and the date of parole discharge. Time served in prison underestimates the actual time served because data on time spent in jail that was credited to the prison sentence for the current offense are not available for most inmates. All tables in the report present data for time served in prison only.

Total time under supervision was calculated by adding time spent in prison and time spent on parole. Once again, jail-time credits are not included in the estimate of the total time under supervision.

Median and mean

The medians in this report were calculated from ungrouped data, since sentencing data do not conform to the standard assumptions permitting calculations from grouped data. Because nearly all sentences are multiples of 12-month units, the assumption of an even distribution of values within groups is not met. Therefore, a shift of only a few cases may increase or decrease the median by 12 months.

In contrast to the calculation of medians, mean sentence lengths exclude prisoners with a sentence of life in prison or death. Medians are sensitive to the uneven distribution of cases; means are influenced by extreme values.

Because of the limitations of each measure, both medians and means were reported for sentence length.

Time served data do not group at 12-month intervals. Both medians and means have been reported in most tables to provide an accurate summary of the data.

Year-to-year comparisons

Care should be exercised when comparing 1987 data on sentence lengths and time served to data published for 1986 and previous years. Year-to-year comparisons should be restricted to those jurisdictions reporting data in all years of interest. The group of jurisdictions participating in 1987, however, differed from the group in the previous years. States reporting in the 1987 program were Alabama, California, Colorado, Delaware, Georgia, Hawaii, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, and Wisconsin. The District of Columbia, the Federal Bureau of Prisons, and the Federal Parole Commission also reported data.

Subgroup comparisons

Care should be exercised when comparing groups of inmates on sentence length and time served. Differences may be the result of factors not described in the tables, including variations in the criminal histories of each group, variations in the offense composition of each group, and variations among participating jurisdictions in their sentencing and correctional practices.

Race

South Carolina reported prisoners other than white or black as unknown.

In Pennsylvania, the category of white includes some Hispanics.

Hispanic origin

In Michigan and Oklahoma, Hispanics include Mexican Americans only.

In New York, Hispanics include only persons of Puerto Rican birth or parentage.

Federal data on Hispanic inmates were not available for persons released from prison before July 1983.

Education

Data on education in Maryland include credits for education received after entering prison for parole discharge records only.

Admission date

Data on date of admission in New York and Texas refer to the original admission date, rather than the most recent date, if inmates had been released and then returned.

Parole and probation revocations in Alabama were coded as illegal entries if they were returned as of the date the NCRP data were prepared.

For Federal offenders the date of sentencing is provided instead of the date of admission. This date is accurate for only new court commitments.

Admission type

In Colorado and Ohio, "new court commitments" includes some parole violators returned with new sentences.

In Minnesota, "new court commitments" includes probation violators.

Delaware's data on admission type were reported inaccurately for an undetermined number of prison release records. Also, "transfers" includes inmates returned to Delaware after being tried in another State.

In Massachusetts, "transfers" includes returns to prison after court appearance, temporary interstate transfers, transfers from other States, Federal transfers, transfers from county to State custody, and transfers from other secure facilities.

In Hawaii and Maryland, "new court commitments" includes all types of admissions.

Nebraska reported the following types of admissions: regular, multiple-offender, evaluator, Federal safekeeper, county safekeeper, and other. Because these could not be translated into the NCRP categories, they were coded as "missing or invalid data entries".

In Ohio, type of admission includes an undetermined number of parole violators returned with new sentences.

In Tennessee, data on admission type were only available for a small number of cases.

In New York, admission type for parole revocations were reported for those with no new sentence only. There are no probation revocations because probation is considered a county function.

In North Carolina, "probation revocation" includes persons whose parole status was pending.

In Minnesota, "parole revocation with or without new sentence" includes mandatory parole violators returned and work release violators returned.

In Pennsylvania, "parole revocation, no sentence information" includes parole revocation with recommitment decisions pending.

In North Carolina, "parole revocation, no sentence information" includes all parole violators with or without new sentences as well as pending parole revocations.

In South Carolina, "parole revocation, no sentence information" includes revocation of "supervised furlough II releases" and Emergency Powers Act releases.

In Texas, "parole revocation, no sentence information" and "mandatory parole revocation, no sentence information" include all parole revocations, with or without new sentences.

In Wisconsin, "parole revocation, new sentence" and "parole revocation, no new sentence" include returns of inmates released early because of overcrowding.

In New York, "mandatory parole revocation with or without new sentence" includes the return of inmates who were granted early release for good time served.

On parole release records in New York, data on admission type were reported only for parole violators with no new sentence.

In North Carolina, "mandatory parole revocation, no sentence information" includes all mandatory parole violators with or without new sentences as well as pending mandatory parole revocations.

In Pennsylvania, "escapees returned" are not considered escapes until returned from court.

Explanatory notes

In South Carolina, "escapees returned" are not counted as admissions.

In Texas, "not known" includes inmates returning from vocational or educational programs.

Offenses

Delaware, New Jersey, North Carolina, and South Carolina reported only one offense, the most serious offense.

Georgia, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, and Tennessee did not report most serious offense.

For Federal prisoners, only two offenses per inmate are reported, usually the two most serious. If an inmate receives an additional offense after admission that is more serious than the original offenses, the inmate's record is updated to show that offense.

Maximum sentence and total maximum sentence

In Illinois and Maryland persons receiving indeterminate sentences were reported as "not known" on sentence length.

In Virginia, the category of "life" includes "life without parole" and executions.

Minimum time to be served

Except for life sentences and a few mandatory sentences, Maryland has no statute that establishes minimum prison terms.

Prison release date

The prison release date is the parole starting date in Maryland. Only the month and year were reported.

In the Federal prison system and Maryland, the prison release date on parole exit records is the date parole supervision begins, not the actual release date.

Prison release method

In Massachusetts, "parole board decision" includes some inmates released by the Massachusetts parole board to another parole board.

In New York, "parole board decision" includes some inmates released by the Division of Prisons.

Pennsylvania does not distinguish "parole board decision" from "mandatory parole releases".

On prison release records in South Carolina, "parole board decision" includes inmates released from a Youthful Offenders Act sentence to a straight sentence and vice versa. On parole release records, "parole board decision" includes inmates released to supervised furlough.

In Wisconsin, "parole board decision" includes early releases because of overcrowding.

In New York, "mandatory parole releases" includes early releases for goodtime served.

Minnesota's "other conditional" releases consists of work releases.

Mississippi's "other conditional releases" includes split sentences, work release, and supervised earned releases.

In Ohio, "other conditional releases" consists of releases for educational or vocational purposes, inmates paroled or shock paroled, on detainer, and under interstate compact.

In Oklahoma, "other conditional releases" consists of releases to a community treatment center.

In Pennsylvania, "other conditional releases" consist of court-ordered paroles.

In South Carolina, "other conditional releases" consists of persons released by the Emergency Powers Act.

In Texas, "other conditional releases" consists of conditional pardons.

For the California Youth Authority, "other unconditional releases" includes discharges to Federal or other prisons.

"Other unconditional releases" in Delaware, Maryland, Ohio, and Texas and Wyoming consists of court-ordered releases.

"Other unconditional releases" in Minnesota consists of discharges of persons with indeterminate sentences by the releasing authority.

In Mississippi, "other unconditional releases" includes shock probation, court suspensions, and court-ordered releases.

In Nebraska, "other unconditional releases" consists of persons whose sentence was vacated.

In Tennessee, "other unconditional releases" consists of unconditional releases to probation.

In Ohio, "other releases" consists of inmates-at-large who did not belong to any other NCRP category.

In Texas, "other releases" includes inmates released to attend vocational or educational facilities.

Parole release method

In the Federal prison system, "discharged, completion of term" includes absconders.

In New York, "other release" includes parole board decision (discretionary after 3 years) court-ordered releases; new revocations, not pursued; and cases in the revocation process in which statutory requirements were not fulfilled.

In Pennsylvania, "other releases" includes parole board case closures for persons who have reached their maximum expiration date and who are in one of the following categories: criminal charges pending, absconders, or returned to home State.

General notes

Missouri underreported admissions by 1,309 inmates, releases by 1,910, and parole-entries by a undetermined number. The actual release count was unattainable at time of data release.

Nebraska reported only one record per inmate, regardless of the number of times the person was admitted or released.

Nevada and New York cannot check movements of inmates between prison and parole because of differences in inmate identification numbers for admission and release records.

In 1987, 35 States, the District of Columbia, and the California Youth Authority reported 240,313 admissions accounting for about four-fifths of all admissions to State prisons in that year. (See "Prisoners in State and Federal Institutions, 1987" in Correctional Populations in the United States, 1987, NCJ-118762.) The 1987 data on entering prisoners provide a profile which resembles that of past reports. Inmate subgroup differences for sentence length and time to be served may have resulted from factors not described in the tables. (See Methodology, page 2.)

- New court commitments—offenders entering prison directly from a sentence by a court and not from an unsuccessful period of community supervision—comprised almost two-thirds of all prison admissions (table 1-1). Parole violators accounted for more than a quarter of all admissions.

- As in previous years, males comprised 93% of the admissions to State prisons (table 1-2).

- Whites accounted for 52% of State prison admissions; blacks, 47%; and other races, primarily American Indians and Asians, 1%. Hispanics of all races made up 18% of all reported prison admissions. The median age of all admissions was 28 years.

- Nearly a third of the persons entering prison had been convicted of a violent offense (table 1-5). Robbery was the most common violent crime, accounting for over a tenth of all admissions.

- About 1 of every 4 women and 1 of every 5 men had been convicted of a drug offense. More than a third of Hispanic prisoners had been convicted of a drug offense.

- The median maximum sentence length for persons admitted to prison in 1987 was 48 months; the mean maximum sentence was 77 months (table 1-6).

- Violent offenses carried the longest median maximum sentence (72 months).

- The median sentence for property, drug, and public-order offenses was 36 months.

- The median sentence for murder was life in prison, longer than for any other individual offense.

- Overall, black prisoners received the same median sentence as white prisoners, 48 months. For violent offenses, however, the median sentence for blacks was 12 months longer than for whites. For property, drug, and public-order offenses, whites and blacks received the same median sentence, 36 months.

- State correctional officials were asked to estimate a minimum time that admitted prisoners would have to serve before becoming eligible for release (table 1-8). Factors used in this estimate include: minimum sentence length, good-time credits, earned-time credits, parole eligibility requirements, and allowances. In those States reporting both sentence length and minimum time to be served, the median sentence length was 60 months, and entering prisoners were expected to serve about third of that time, a median of 20 months.

- The minimum time to be served for violent offenders was 34 months; for property offenders, 17 months; and for drug offenders, 20 months.

- The average estimated minimum time to be served for men was 39% of their mean maximum sentence versus 37% for women (table 1-9).

- In 1987, sentences of life in prison or death were received by 3% of all offenders who entered prison; more than half of the murderers and a tenth of the kidnapers received a sentence of life or death sentence (table 1-11).

Releases from State prisons

Release data for 1987 are based on information provided by 35 States, the District of Columbia, and the California Youth Authority. These States reported a total of 208,838 releases, which accounted for four-fifths of the releases from State prisons. (See "Prisoners in State and Federal Institutions, 1987" in Correctional Populations in the United States, 1987, NCJ-118762, December 1989.) Of the total, 155,300 were first releases, those released from prison for the first time on their current sentence. Excluded from first releases were persons who had previously been conditionally released from prison for the same offense and then were returned to prison for violating the conditions of that release. All data on offense distribution and time served are limited to first releases. Inmate subgroup differences for time served may have resulted from factors not described in the tables. (See Methodology, page 2.)

- About 5 of every 6 persons released were released conditionally from prison (table 2-1). They were released to complete their sentences under supervision in the community.

- Men make up the vast majority (93%) of persons released from prison (table 2-2). Whites accounted for 53% of the releases; blacks, 46%; and persons of other races, 1%.

- Violent offenders accounted for 30% of the first time releases; property offenders, 45%; drug offenders, 16%; and public-order offenders, 8% (table 2-3).

- Forty-six percent of the first releases had served a year or less in prison before their release in 1987; 7% had served more than 5 years.

- Men served longer in prison than women for all types of offenses except for "other violent" offenses. Overall, the median time served was 15 months by men, compared to 9 months by women (table 2-4).

- The median time served in prison for blacks was 15 months, 2 months longer than that for whites (table 2-5). These differences reflect in part the higher percentage of violent offenders among black releases.

- The median time served was longer for blacks than for whites for all violent offenses except for assault and other sexual assault offenses.

- Among Hispanic first releases the median time served on a violent offense was 24 months in prison; on a property or drug offense 11 months; and on a public-order offense, 10 months.

- The median time served for murder was 74 months; for nonnegligent manslaughter, 43 months; for rape, 37 months; for robbery, 30 months; and for assault, 17 months (table 2-6).

- Among property offenders the median time served was longest for arson (18 months) and burglary (15 months).

- The median time served for drug offenses was 12 months in prison. Drug traffickers had spent an average of 4 months longer in prison than those convicted of drug possession (a median time of 14 months and 10 months, respectively).

- Among those releases with data reported on minimum time to be served, the median maximum sentence length was 54 months, the minimum time estimated to be served was 18 months, and the time actually served was 20 months (table 2-7). On average, offenders had served slightly over a third of their maximum sentence before release.

- Offenders released through a parole board decision had served a median of 15 months and a mean of 25 months (table 2-8). Mandatory parole releases, whose time had been set by statute, had served a median of 14 months and a mean of 20 months. Unconditional releases had served a median of 14 months and a mean of 23 months.

^aThe percent of maximum sentence length is calculated by dividing the mean minimum time to be served and the mean time served by the mean maximum sentence length.

^bSentence length refers to the maximum sentence that an offender may be required to serve for the most serious offense.

^cMinimum time to be served is the jurisdiction's estimate of the shortest time that each admitted prisoner must serve before becoming eligible for release.

^dIncludes sentences of "life without parole," "life plus additional years," "life," and "death."
^eExcludes sentences of "life without parole," "life plus additional years," "life," and "death."

Note: Data are on all first releases with a sentence of more than a year for whom the most serious offense, time served in prison, and method of prison release were reported.

^aA conditional release occurs if the released inmate, upon violating the conditions of the release, can be imprisoned again for any of the sentences for which the inmate had served time in prison.

^bDiscretionary release occurs when a parole board approved a conditional release to supervision.

^cMandatory release occurs when a conditional release from prison is required by statute or when an inmate has been confined for a time period equal to his or her full sentence minus statutory good time if any. Persons leaving prison by mandatory supervised release are placed on conditional release status until the full sentence expires, or until some point in time specified by law.

^dAn unconditional release occurs only if the released inmate cannot be reimprisoned for any sentence for which he was in prison.

Entries to parole from State prisons

Most prisoners leaving State prisons in 1987 were released to supervision in the community. In these data covering 35 States, the District of Columbia, and the California Youth Authority, there were 125,353 first entries to parole supervision from State prisons. These prisoners were released to parole either by decision of a parole board (discretionary parole release) or by provision of the statute under which they were sentenced (mandatory parole release).

State statutes often determine what conditions prisoners must fulfill to enter parole. For example, some States specify the fraction of a sentence that offenders must serve—such as a third or a fourth—before entering parole. Other States have a mandatory minimum time to be served for certain crimes or for specified circumstances of a crime. Yet other States have parole guidelines that set ranges of time to be served for different types of crimes.

- Whites make up 52% of the 1987 parole-entry population, blacks 47%, and other races 1% (table 3-1).

- The median age of persons entering parole is 28 years.

- About 31% of the offenders entering parole supervision had served time for a violent offense; 45% for a property offense; 16% for a drug offense; and about 7% for a public-order offense (table 3-2).

- A higher percentage of releases from State prison entered parole supervision from a parole board decision than from a mandatory parole release (60% versus 40% respectively) (table 3-3). However, at least 80% of the offenders convicted of murder or stolen property offenses entered parole by means of discretionary parole release.

- The median maximum sentence for all parole entries was 48 months, while the median time served for was 16 months (table 3-4).

- Overall, persons paroled in 1987 had served on average 37% of their maximum sentence in prison prior to their release.

- On average, violent offenders served 39% of their maximum sentence in prison before their parole; drug and public-order offenders served 34%, and property offenders served 33%.

Note: Data on offense distribution for sentence length and time served in prison were reported for 73.0% of the 125,353 State parole entries who entered prison with a sentence of more than a year.

^aSentence length refers to the maximum sentence that an offender may be required to serve for the most serious offense.

^bIncludes sentences of "life without parole," "life plus additional years," "life," and "death."

^cExcludes sentences of "life without parole," "life plus additional years," "life," and "death."

In 1987, 27 States and the California Youth Authority reported 116,756 discharges from parole supervision. These discharges accounted for 81% of all State parole discharges for 1987. (See "Prisoners in State and Federal Institutions, 1987" in Correctional Populations in the United States, 1987, NCJ-118762.)

Most parole terms end with a discharge from the supervising agency or a return to prison. Parole revocation rates reflect various factors, including parole policy as well as parolees' behavior. The release of high-risk offenders because of crowded facilities, strict surveillance of parolees, rigid enforcement of parole conditions, and longer parole terms may contribute either singly or in combination to failure rates.

- Among all persons discharged by State paroling agencies in 1987, 43% successfully completed parole (table 4-2).
- Among first discharges from parole, that is, persons released from parole for the first time for a particular offense, 60% completed parole successfully (table 4-3).
- Over two-thirds of the white and over half of the black State parolees discharged in 1987 had successfully completed parole supervision after their first release from prison on a sentence.
- Among those who were discharged from supervision, more blacks (40%) than whites (28%) were returned to prison or jail for violating the conditions of parole.
- Offenders convicted of property crimes were the least likely to complete their parole term successfully (table 4-5).
- Among State parole discharges the highest percentage of returns to prison or jail were reported for offenders serving sentences for motor vehicle theft (49%), robbery (44%), and burglary (44%).

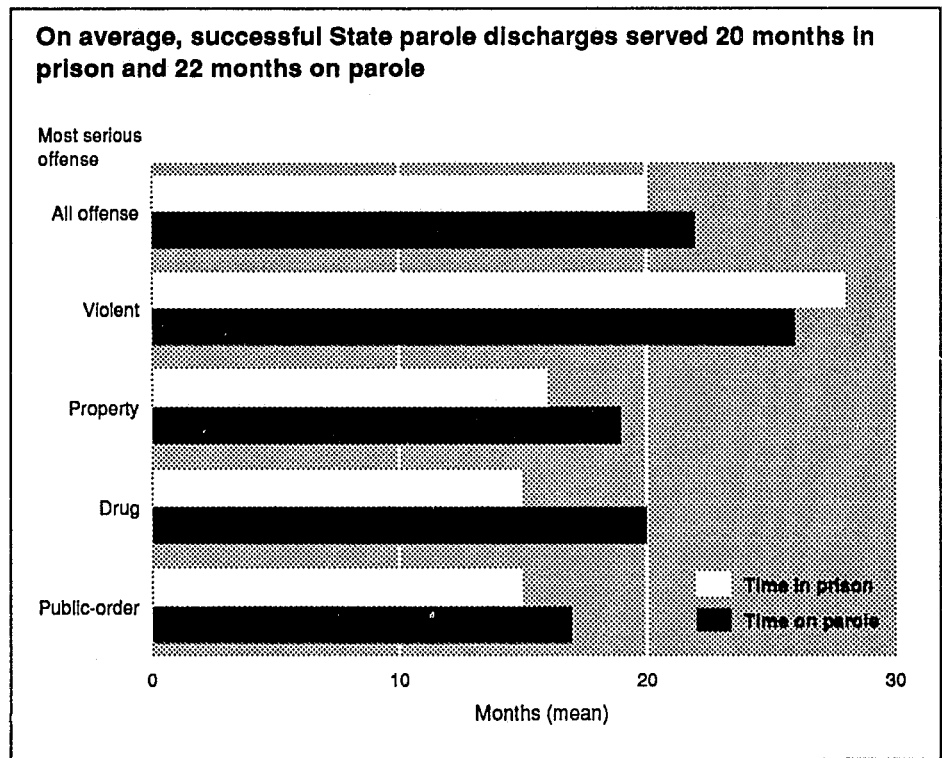

Figure 4-1. Successful State parole discharges: Time served in prison and on parole

- Successful first State parole discharges served a total mean time in prison and on parole of 42 months (table 4-6); violent offenders, 54 months; drug and property offenders, 35 months; and public-order offenders, 32 months.
- For major categories of violent offenses, property, drug, and public-order, persons successfully completing parole had served about half of their total time in prison and half on parole. Parolees convicted of rape and homicide served on average about 60% of their total time under supervision in prison while persons convicted of drug trafficking, motor vehicle theft, or stolen property served less than 45% of their time in prison.
- For every offense category except arson, men spent more time, on average, under correctional supervision than women (table 4-7).

- Overall, whites had served a mean of 19 months in prison and 20 months on parole, while blacks served 22 months in prison and 23 months on parole (table 4-8). As indicated earlier, the percent violent and geographic area of incarceration may account for these differences.
- On average blacks spent more time under correctional supervision than whites for violent, drug, and public-order offenses, and less time than whites for property offenses.
- The average total time served under correctional supervision was 42 months for successful first discharges from State parole compared to 45 months for unsuccessful first discharges (table 4-12). Compared to successful discharges, unsuccessful discharges served 6 months longer in prison but 3 months shorter on parole before their discharge.

Admissions to Federal prisons

- In 1987 Federal prisons reported admitting 26,451 persons — 14,469 with sentences of more than 12 months; 10,822 with sentences of 12 months or less; and 1,160 for whom sentence length data were not reported (table 5-1).

- Men comprised 89% of all Federal admissions.

- Whites made up 78% of offenders admitted to Federal prison; blacks, 20%; and members of other races, primarily Asians and American Indians, 2%.

- Prisoners with sentences of more than 12 months were on average older than those with short sentences (a median age of 34 compared to 30).

- About 11% of blacks admitted to Federal prison compared to 4% of whites were violent offenders. Over a third of both racial groups were entering prison for drug offenses (table 5-2).

- Among Hispanics admitted to Federal prison, more than 60% were immigration violators, and more than 30% were drug offenders.

- Over half of all persons admitted to Federal prison with a sentence of more than 12 months had been convicted of drug abuse violations; 30% for trafficking; and 22% for other or unspecified drug offenses (table 5-5).

- Among prisoners admitted with sentences of 12 months or less, 42% were convicted of immigration law violations; 18% were convicted of drug violations; and 16% were convicted of fraudulent offenses, such as embezzlement, fraud, or counterfeiting.

- Overall, only 7% of persons admitted to Federal prison in 1987 had been convicted of a violent offense.

- The median maximum sentence for all admissions was 24 months (table 5-7). The large number of short-sentenced immigration offenders, who comprised 20% of all admissions, heavily influenced this median.

- The median sentence of admissions for violent offenses (96 months) was twice that for drug offenses (48 months). The median sentence for property offenses was 18 months and for public-order offenses, 4 months.

- For those entering prison with a sentence of more than 12 months, the median maximum sentence was 48 months; for violent offenses, 120 months; for property and public-order offenses, 36 months; and for drug offenses, 60 months.

- Men entering Federal prison had received a maximum sentence that on average was 6 months longer than that of women (median sentences of 24 months and 18 months, respectively) (table 5-8).

- The overall median sentence length for whites admitted to prison was 18 months, a median influenced by the large number of short sentences among immigration violators. The median sentence for blacks was 36 months.

- Among persons admitted to prison with sentences of more than 12 months, blacks received an overall median maximum sentence of 12 months longer than that for whites (60 months versus 48 months) (table 5-9). However, blacks and whites had the same median maximum sentences for the major categories of violent, property, drug, and public-order offenses.

^aExcludes 1,160 admissions with an unknown total maximum sentence length.

^bIncludes only those admissions with a total maximum sentence length of more than 12 months for all offenses.

^cSentence length refers to the maximum sentence that an offender may be required to serve for the most serious offense.

^dMinimum time to be served is the jurisdiction estimate of the shortest time that each admitted prisoner must serve before becoming eligible for release. Data on minimum time to be served were reported for 83.8% of all prison admissions.

^fExcludes sentences of "life."

Releases from Federal prisons

- In 1987, 40% of the 25,020 prisoners leaving Federal prison for the first time on a sentence were released conditionally to supervision in the community (table 6-1). Mandatory parole, a release established by statute rather than a parole board decision, comprised 43% of the conditional releases.
- For first releases with a sentence of 12 months or less, 99% of those 11,806 releases were for expiration of sentence. This is a result of the large number of immigration convictions with sentences of 12 months or less and thus ineligible for parole.
- Among the first releases sentenced to more than 12 months, 15% left prison when their sentence expired, and 82% left before expiration, with conditions attached to the remainder of the sentence.
- Males constituted the majority (90%) of all releases from Federal prison (table 6-2). Whites accounted for 76% of the releases; blacks, 22%; and members of other races, 2%.
- Hispanics comprised 37% of the first releases from Federal prison. Half of all releases with sentences of 12 months or less were Hispanic.
- About 60% of first releases from Federal prison in 1987 had served 1 to 12 months, 22% had served 13 to 24 months; and 19% had served more than 24 months (table 6-3).
- Among first releases with sentences of 12 months or less, 56% served less than 4 months before their release. The median time served was 3 months (table 6-4). This relatively low median reflects immigration offenders who served a median of 2 months, and who accounted for 44% of first releases with sentences of 12 months or less.
- Of first releases sentenced to more than 12 months, half served 20 months or less before their release (table 6-5).

- First releases with sentences of more than 12 months served a median of 44 months in prison for violent offenses; 21 months for drug offenses; 18 months for property offenses; and 17 months for public-order offenses.
- Among individual offenses, the median time served for kidnaping was 64 months; for robbery and assault, 45 months; for rape, 43 months; for homicide, 39 months; for drug trafficking, 21 months; and for drug possession, 13 months.
- Among those first releases with sentences of more than 12 months, men served more time in prison than women for every type of offense, except embezzlement, possession, and immigration (table 6-8).
- Overall, men served a median of 21 months, and women, 17 months. For male violent offenders the median time served was 13 months longer than that - for women; for male property and drug offenders, 4 months longer; and for male public-order offenders, 2 months longer.

- For first releases sentenced to more than 12 months, little difference separated the median time served by white and black offenders, except for violent offenses. Black violent offenders served a median of 50 months, and whites served 43 months (table 6-10).
- Except for violent offenders, mandatory releases with sentences of more than 12 months served more time in prison than discretionary releases. For all offenders combined, the median time served for mandatory releases was 24 months, 3 months longer than that served by discretionary releases.
- Prisoners released at the expiration of their term served the least amount of time, a median of 13 months.

^aFirst releases are persons released for the first time on their current sentence. All data exclude persons released from prison by escape, death, transfer, appeal, or detainer.

^bSentence length refers to the maximum sentence that an offender may be required to serve for the most serious offense.

^cData on time served in prison are based on all first releases for whom the most serious offense and time served were reported.

^dIncludes sentences of "life."

^eExcludes sentences of "life."

Entries to parole from Federal prisons

- Men comprised 92% of the 9,909 entries to parole from Federal prison in 1987 (table 7-1).

- White offenders comprised 71% of all parole entries; black offenders, 26%; and offenders of other races, 2%. Hispanic offenders, who could be of any race, were 22% of the total.

- The median age for parolees at the time of their release from prison was 36 years.

- Fifty-seven percent of parole entries had graduated from high school, while about 18% had completed eight grades or less.

- Among first releases from Federal prison to parole, 56% had been released by a parole board, and 44% were mandatory releases (table 7-3).

- A higher percentage of public-order offenders than of other offenders was released from prison and entered parole as a result of a mandatory release. Sixty-six percent of weapons violators were mandatory releases.

- Among parole entries for whom complete data exist on maximum sentence and time served in prison, half served 23 months or less in prison on a median maximum sentence of 48 months (table 7-4).

- Violent and drug offenders on average served a smaller proportion of their maximum sentence in prison than other types of offenders. The median time served in prison by violent offenders, 47 months, was 50% of the median maximum sentence; the median time served by drug offenders, 22 months, was 46% of the median maximum sentence. Property and public-order offenders served a median time of 20 months which was 56% of their median maximum sentence.

- Among first releases, the median time served in prison before a discretionary release was 21 months, and before a mandatory release, 24 months (table 7-5).

- Among violent offenders, discretionary releases had served 15 months longer on average than mandatory releases (a median of 55 months compared to 40). Among other types of Federal offenders entering parole, mandatory releases had served less time in prison than had discretionary releases.

- Among the 8,737 individuals discharged from Federal parole, 78% were successful in leaving supervision and reentering the community, 21% were returned to prison, and 1% died (table 8-1).

- Almost the same percentage of men and women successfully completed parole—78% and 81%, respectively. A higher percentage of whites successfully completed parole than blacks (84% versus 65%, respectively).

- Among Federal parole discharges, violent offenders were the most likely to be returned to prison (table 8-3). Forty percent of the violent offenders were returned to prison compared to 22% of the property offenders and 14% of the drug and public-order offenders.

- Drug offenders were the largest group discharged from Federal parole (38%) (table 8-4). Property offenders were second largest at 31%, followed by violent and public-order offenders at 15%.

- Among those successfully discharged from parole, 42% were drug offenders; 30% were property offenders; 16% were public-order offenders; and 11% were violent offenders. Drug trafficking was the largest individual offense group (40%), followed by larceny/theft (9%).

- For those persons unsuccessfully discharged from parole and returned to prison, 33% were property offenders; 30% were violent offenders; 26% drug offenders; and 11% were public-order offenders. Robbery offenders were the largest individual offense group (27%), followed by drug traffickers (24%), and those convicted of larceny/theft (12%).

- The median time served on parole for all offenses was 14 months (table 8-5). The median time on parole for violent offenses was 24 months; for property offenses, 14 months; and for drug and public-order offenses, 12 months.

Federal discharges successfully completing parole served on average 48 months under correctional supervision; those unsuccessfully completing parole, 78 months

Figure 8-1. Successful and unsuccessful Federal parole discharges: Maximum sentence length and time served in prison and on parole

- Among those successfully completing parole, black and white offenders had the same median time served on parole—12 months (table 8-6). Among violent offenders the median time on parole was 5 months longer for blacks than for whites. However, among drug offenders the median time was 3 months longer for whites.

- Among parolees returning to prison, blacks and whites had the same median time served on parole—20 months (table 8-7). Blacks returned to prison after a longer time on parole than whites for a violent offense (medians of 23 months and 21 months, respectively.)

- Successful parole discharges for whom data were reported on both time in prison and on parole served a median of 25 months in prison and 10 months on parole (table 8-8). Unsuccessful parole discharges served a median of 44 months in prison and 17 months on parole.

- Successful parole discharges on average served a total of 48 months under correctional supervision (a mean of 34 months in prison and 14 months on parole), while unsuccessful parole discharges served a total of 78 months.

► Drugs & Crime Data

Do you know . . .

- what percentage of persons arrested for felony drug offenses are released on bail?
- what proportion of felons convicted in State courts were convicted of drug offenses?
- what proportion of felony drug trafficking convictions result from a guilty plea?

The Drugs & Crime Data Center & Clearinghouse has the answers to these questions and many more.

The Data Center & Clearinghouse—

- operates a toll-free 800 number staffed by drugs and crime information specialists
- answers requests for specific drug-related data
- maintains a data base of more than 2,000 drugs and crime citations
- performs bibliographic searches on specific topics
- disseminates Bureau of Justice Statistics and other Department of Justice publications relating to drugs and crime
- maintains a library and reading room
- publishes reports on current topics of interest.

Do you ever . . .

- need statistics on drug defendants and their sentences?
- seek information on innovative methods to expedite drug cases through the court process?
- have any questions about drug testing programs?

Are you . . .

- ever at a loss for a statistic?
- pressed for time?
- in a rush for information?
